

COAL-LADEN BARGE SINKS AND TWO LIVES ARE LOST

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., December 5.—Two men were drowned and a third had a thrilling escape early this morning when the schooner William Donnelly, of Baltimore, coal-laden, for Hampton, foundered off Thimble Shoal, in Chesapeake Bay. The schooner was in command of Captain John R. Phillips, and his nephew and one other man composed the crew. The vessel encountered severe weather, and early last night she began to leak. Between 2 and 4 o'clock this morning she went down suddenly, before those aboard had time to launch a boat. Captain Phillips managed to grasp a hatch cover as the schooner went down, and after about six hours of desperate fighting for his life, he was washed ashore near Willoughby Beach, in Hampton Roads, in an exhausted and almost dying condition. He was later taken to Norfolk. The other two men went down with the schooner. The Donnelly had about 175 tons of anthracite coal consigned to a Hampton merchant.
